Homer Knights' Fresh Staff

by Ross Abts

Aspen Bennier decided to be a teacher while working at a day-care. When she started teaching, she implemented a preschool curriculum that had her see how quickly the kids were taking hold of new concepts. After her first group of kids moved up to kindergarten, she was told by the teachers that it was obvious which kids were in her preschool class. She said it was all she needed to become a teacher. Her motivations to come to Homer were the size of the classes and the exceedingly small district. She subbed for Homer last year and experienced the friendly staff and students. She says, "I knew this would be a great opportunity."

Dr. Joey Lefdal wanted to become an educator because of his teachers, who were always there to help him boost his morale, so he wanted to give that back. He applied for the Homer superintendent's job, because his spouse and he were looking for closer places to family and friends, and the position just happened to be open for an interview. "I am very familiar with the great things that Homer has to offer, since I have been in Northeast Nebraska for most of my career," he stated.

Mrs. Sara Leinart went to school to be a veterinarian. She worked for the University of Nebraska, then she got married and started a Pronto convenience store, which she sold after 17 years. Her cousin told her to become a substitute teacher, because it would fit into their drag racing schedule.
